3. The precise mission track is being reiterated by computer. There has been close coordination with SAC to effect a mission track which will have the aircraft in stable flight over the areas of major interest. The anomalies and image degradation that occurred on the last mission as a result of turns has been reviewed in detail with SAC and steps have been taken to minimize or preclude repetition of these effects.

4. The mission objectives and the general flight plan have been reviewed with Middle East Task Force personnel who agree with the objectives and the routes selected as being optimum considering intelligence needs and operational limitations.
